Victor Hugo No Dramatist. The flashing brilliancy of Hugo's ver-sification blinded many spectators for a brief season and prevented most of them from seeing what was made plain at last by an analysis of the plays in prose, Mary Tudor, for exam-ple. When no gorgeously embroidered garment draped the meager skeleton, it was not difficult to discover that Victor Hugo was not a great dramatic poet "of the race and lineage of Shakespeare." A great poet he was beyond all question, perhaps the greatest poet of the century, but his gift was lyric and not dramatic. He was a lyrist of incomparable vigor, variety and sonority, and as a lyric he had often an al-most epic amplitude of vision. As a dramatist his outlook was narrow and He could not conceive boldly a lofty theme, treating it with the un-failing simplicity of the masters. His subjects were lacking in nobility, in dignity, in stateliness. His plots were violent and extravagant, and his charnoters were as forced as his situations. The poetry to be found in his plays is external rather than internal. It is almost an afterthought. Under the lyrical drapery which is so deceptive at first there is no more than a melofirama.-Brander Matthews in Atlan-

Fat people are less able to resist the attacks of disease or the shock of injuries and operations than the moderately thin. In ordinary everyday life they are at a decided disadvantage. Their respiratory muscles cannot so easily set. Their heart is often handicomped by the deposit on it, and the least exertion throws them into a per-spiration. This last fact is curiously anisunderstood. It is almost universally looked upon as an actual "melting" of the subcutaneous fat and is considered to be nature's method of getting gid of the superfluity.

But this is not correct, for in spite of its greaty appearance sweat only conmore than .01 per cent, and this comes of course from the cells of the sudor iparous glands and primarily from certain constituents in the blood. A person whose limbs and body are covered with adipose tissue is in the position of a man carrying a heavy burden and too warmly clothed.-London Hospital.

Don't be forever setting people right. There is a household flend with a memory for dates and details who can nev er sit still and hear papa say that he event down town on Monday at 8 without correcting the statement with the remark that the hour was balf past. If mamma happens to allude to Cousin Jenny's visit as having occurred last Thursday, this waspilka impersonation of accuracy interposes with the statement that it was Friday, not Thursday, which brought Cousin Jane.

A dozen times a day exasperating frictions are caused by needless corrections of this sort, referring to matters where exactness is not really imperative, the affairs in question being nimportant and no violation of truth being for an instant intended.

Laber Saving Soup.
"Soup too hot? Well, it's this way," said the waiter at the table d'hote res taurant as he grew confidential. "The chef found that he was running shy, and, as he didn't want to make any more, he threw in a lot of pepper so the guests would be satisfied with smaller portions. You see, if he hadn't, the hungry man who comes in late would e complaining about the smallness of the portion served to him. A man will be satisfied with a few spoonfuls of consomme when it's as hot as tabasco

Had Done His Best. "I don't know why it is," said the in-dignant taxpayer who had been trying In vain to have his assessment reduced, "but I can't even get a hearing."

"Perhaps," suggested his friend, "you don't stand in with the officeholders." "I stand in line an bour or two every day, if that's what you mean, and it doesn't do a bit of good." - Chicago
